The war over water rights in the Upper San Pedro Basin will become a war over water itself once the rationing begins. That will happen if any more large scale developments are permitted.

I live near the San Pedro River in Hereford.. I ask those in favor of further development to take the "eyeball" test. The water is disappearing. At times I have ridden my bicycle over a trickle of water from one side of the river to the other.

The number of wells has increased at an alarming rate. When will the extreme drought end?

Unless a canal is built to our area bringing water from elsewhere, no further large scale developments!
